

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for collecting fresh water through atmospheric water collection and salt water desalination. The apparatus is used for a method of utilizing deep ocean water to extract fresh water from atmospheric water vapor while producing a byproduct of deep ocean water salt. The apparatus and method may include multiple vertical stages that utilize siphons and heat exchangers to move vapor condensing means through a plurality of stages to produce fresh water at every stage.